

Century Aluminum Company Lauds Implementation of Broad Relief by President Trump

March 8, 2018

Tariff rate of 10% to apply to all aluminum imports with temporary exemption for Canada and Mexico

CHICAGO, March 8, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- President Donald J. Trump today signed a Presidential Proclamation implementing a 10% tariff on all primary aluminum imports into the United States in order to stop the flood of foreign metal that has been destroying the U.S. aluminum industry and threatening our nation's national security. Canada and Mexico will be given a temporary exemption from the tariff pending negotiations.

Michael Bless, Century Aluminum Company's (NASDAQ: CENX) President and Chief Executive Officer, praised the President's determination:

"We strongly support today's signing of the Presidential Proclamation by President Donald J. Trump that will impose broad comprehensive relief to stop the flood of aluminum imports into the United States. President Trump's decisive action protects thousands of American aluminum workers from countries that cheat and puts U.S. national security first. We commend President Trump for acting swiftly and boldly on the aluminum sec. 232 to save the American aluminum industry."

Century Aluminum is the largest producer of primary aluminum in the United States. The Company's Hawesville smelter, which currently operates at 40% of capacity, is the last U.S. smelter operating that is capable of producing high purity aluminum necessary for defense and military applications.

"We look forward to working with Governor Matt Bevin and Kentucky's Economic Development Cabinet to begin the process of restarting the idled potlines at our Hawesville, Kentucky smelter, bringing back nearly 300 new American jobs to Hancock County, and investing over $100 million to restart and upgrade the smelters technology," announced Mr. Bless. The Company expects to provide additional details on the Hawesville restart in coming weeks.
